CORPORATE CITIZENSHIP & GIVING GUIDE
PUBLISHER’S LETTER

In a year like 2020 – with societal and health challenges occurring globally – corporate philanthropy plays an even more important role than usual. Studies have repeatedly shown that 75 percent of employees who volunteer or engage with nonprofit causes through their workplace, end up feeling better about their employers. The overall mental and emotional benefits of volunteering are even greater, with 93 percent reporting an improved mood, 79 percent reporting lower stress levels and 88 percent reporting increased self-esteem by giving back.

Community involvement can contribute to key business goals, including improved reputation and the attraction and retention of employees, as well as the obvious fiscal benefits related to taxes.

There are many important and meaningful organizations right here in Los Angeles County doing incredibly important work. We have taken the opportunity to share some of the best of them with you in this annual Corporate Citizenship & Giving Guide special supplement. We hope it serves to remind you of the needs that exist while providing you and your business with a resource to aid in the quest for partnering with the right philanthropic or community organization.

In this section, we also acknowledge some examples of extraordinary businesses that have led by example and taken the process of corporate social responsibility to the next level by making good on their commitments to their nonprofit partners.

Thanks are due to our section sponsors who make this volume possible and many thanks to you, our readers who have taken the time to consider the needs of your community.

Best regards,

Josh Schimmels

Navigating the Post-Pandemic World as a Nonprofit

By MARK KAWAUCHI

Staying on a mission — no matter what obstacles stand in the way — is challenging for any nonprofit. Add in a pandemic and things can often get even more complicated, especially for healthcare organizations.

COVID-19 is now the leading cause of death in the U.S., according to an article in Live Science that discusses how the virus has beat out previous top contenders: heart disease and cancer. For nonprofits seeking to serve vulnerable and at-risk populations, this represents an unprecedented challenge.

PROVIDING CONTINUED CARE WITHOUT INTERRUPTION

The common theme seen with nonprofits who have been able to successfully sustain their mission has been their ability to adapt to change quickly.

For healthcare organizations, there has been a rapid adaptation from in-person appointments to telehealth and adjustment to new regulatory requirements for monitoring and responding to the pandemic. Overall, nonprofit healthcare organizations around the world have had to pivot to a less-traditional way of delivering care.

Additionally, nonprofits providing supplies to at-risk communities have to innovate in order to achieve their missions. The underlying commonality is being able to adapt rapidly to continue client outreach and ensure they receive care without interruption.

A similar trend is being felt by children and family social service organizations.

A Harvard Business Review article on reimagining nonprofits to survive the crisis suggests reimagining the impact that the organization wants to have by collaborating with team members and defining a strategy.

The team should then analyze people within their organization and ensure leadership is genuinely in touch with staff and reflective of the people the nonprofit serves. From there, organizations can focus on finances and community efforts and use their findings to take advantage of opportunities the pandemic presents.

MAKING STRATEGIC MOVES AND AVOIDING BURNOUT

Given the uncertainty that COVID-19 will bring in the next six to 12 months, nonprofits need to continue to look ahead. Business strategies will need to evolve and change. For leadership this can present certain challenges — and opportunities.

One key area is avoiding employee and volunteer burnout. Prior to stay-at-home initiatives, working from home was considered a luxury for many employees. Now, high-traffic daily commutes have been reduced, families have seen cost savings of out-of-pocket expenses and people are able to spend more time with their families.

But as the pandemic enters its ninth month, burnout is becoming more and more apparent — especially for nonprofits trying to continue to serve their communities.

Challenges of a lack of face-to-face human interaction are apparent, true collaboration with coworkers is missing and networking in the industry has become more of a chore as people experience Zoom or Microsoft Teams meeting fatigue.

In order to avoid this burnout, leadership should make sure to set goals daily on what needs to be accomplished and be realistic on what tasks can wait. Encourage collaboration between coworkers to hold each other accountable to meet tasks. It is also important for leadership to encourage employees to have dedicated home office space, set boundaries on their time and take breaks during the day or take an occasional full-day off to re-energize and regroup.

FUNDRAISING DURING A PANDEMIC

In the nonprofit space, most fundraising events have also become virtual. Getting donors to attend yet another Zoom meeting has proven to be a real challenge — and getting them to engage once they attend can be harder. The influence or peer pressure of seeing other individuals donating at a live event is no longer there. Nonprofits should continue to reach out to potential donors and network, however, because these virtual efforts also help to build a solid digital engagement strategy and virtual fundraising toolkit that can help them grow their impact over time — despite a pandemic.

GUIDING TEAM MEMBERS THROUGH CRISIS

A common concern among C-suite executives is "unproductive time" working from home. Competing tasks become evident for those with children, families or parents who require care. A recent Forbes article about keeping employees engaged during a pandemic states that it all comes down to two things: connection and recognition.

It is critical for leadership to guide teams by showing compassion and empathy while still communicating clearly — and, in turn, this helps nonprofits maintain their culture, mission and team cohesion.

Providing opportunities to connect with volunteers or employees in meaningful ways helps to counter the negative side effects of the pandemic and reinforces loyalty to a nonprofit’s mission and team members. These opportunities could be anything from scheduling virtual coffee breaks to check in on mental health or home life, to discussing workload challenges.

This empathy, in addition to consistent recognition, will have a significant impact on morale. In fact, a Harvard Business Review article about employee recognition noted that a survey found 82 percent of employees do not feel recognized enough for their contributions, and 40 percent of employed Americans say they would put more effort into their work if they were recognized more often.

SILVER LININGS FOR THE FUTURE

There are still innovations that have come out of the challenges brought up from the pandemic. For community clinics, telehealth services may be the future of how they deliver care to more patients, without rapidly needing to increase the size of their facilities. It may also lead to better preventive care due to the ease of patients attending a telehealth appointment rather than going to a clinic.

Having to pivot during the middle of a pandemic is not easy — and so many nonprofit healthcare organizations are on the front lines of providing essential services during this time. The challenges may seem overwhelming, but there are opportunities for innovation and growth that develop out of crisis. And in the midst of the pandemic, nonprofits can still be inspired to continue their responsibility for helping others.

Greenberg Glusker Donates $250,000 to Charities Addressing Hunger, Homelessness, Social Justice and PPE Supply

It’s no secret: The effects of COVID-19 have been drastic. Issues already plaguing major cities — such as homelessness and food insecurity — have grown as a result of jumps in unemployment, and systemic health and social inequities have increasingly revealed themselves as people from racial and ethnic minority communities face increased risk.

Los Angeles is one of these cities, where it has been projected that homelessness could increase by 16%, that food distribution at the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank has increased 70%, and that the mortality rate for COVID-19 is almost twice as high for Black residents than white residents.

Determined to meet the deep needs of its community during this difficult time, Greenberg Glusker is proud to announce that it has donated a total of $250,000 between four organizations that address hunger, homelessness, social injustice, and PPE supply.

A few years ago, the firm created a donor-advised fund at the California Community Foundation, and we’re honored to direct these funds to these well-deserving non-profit organizations as part of a larger philanthropic initiative. After a firm-wide vote, these organizations were selected and awarded the following amounts: the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank received $75,000, PATH received $75,000, Equal Justice Initiative received $75,000, and Children’s Hospital Los Angeles received $35,000.

“Our community needs have never been greater, and I am extremely proud of our collective efforts to commit these funds to organizations that work to improve the lives of people in Los Angeles,” said Bob Bandaran, managing partner of Greenberg Glusker.

“There has been no better time to contribute to groups that are supporting people who have been directly impacted by COVID-19 and social injustice.”

Beyond financial support, Greenberg Glusker plans to maintain relationships with these organizations through volunteer efforts, pro bono work, and firm-wide drives once permitted post-COVID.

“As a Los Angeles-based law firm, we have an obligation to give back to the community that give so much to us. So, we are incredibly grateful for the opportunity to distribute these funds to worthy charities,” said Norman Levine, partner and member of Greenberg Glusker’s Management Committee and Litigation Department. “In addition to providing financial support, our firm is committed to developing a meaningful relationship with each group and volunteering our time and energy to support their missions.”

ABOUT THE CHARITIES

Los Angeles Regional Food Bank: The Los Angeles Regional Food Bank has been mobilizing resources to fight hunger in Los Angeles County since 1973. To support the Food Bank’s vision that no one goes hungry in Los Angeles County, food and grocery products are distributed through a network of 660 partner agencies and directly to families, seniors and children through direct distribution programs. The Food Bank has distributed more than 1.5 billion pounds of food, the equivalent of 1.2 billion meals since 1973. In response to the Coronavirus crisis, the Food Bank has more than doubled food distribution, and now reaches more than 900,000 people every month. The Food Bank is a 4-star rated charity by Charity Navigator. For more information, visit LARFoodBank.org.

PATH: Founded in 1984, PATH is the largest homeless nonprofit organization working to end homelessness for individuals, families, and communities in California. We do this by building affordable housing and providing supportive services statewide. PATH works in over 150 California cities and serves 20% of the state’s population experiencing homelessness. In the last five years, PATH has helped more than 10,200 move into permanent homes. For more information, visit path.org.

Children’s Hospital Los Angeles: Children’s Hospital is a non-profit institution that provides pediatric healthcare and helps their patients more than a half a million times each year in a setting that is designed for their needs. Its COVID-19 Emergency Response Fund provides the hospital with the specialized supplies, medical tests, expert care and technology that ultimately enables it to respond to the needs of its patients, families, and the community at large. For more information, please visit chla.org.

Equal Justice Initiative: The Equal Justice Initiative is committed to ending mass incarceration and excessive punishment in the United States, to challenging racial and economic injustice and to protecting basic human rights for the most vulnerable people in American society. For more information, please visit eqi.org.

The Greenberg Glusker Charitable Fund is a component fund of the California Community Foundation, a 501c3 public charity. Contributions to the California Community Foundation represent irrevocable gifts subject to the legal and fiduciary control of the foundation’s board of directors.

AT THE TIME THEY ARE NEEDED MOST, DONOR-ADVISED FUNDS EMPOWER CHARITABLE GIVING

By Steve Gamer

In the realm of trusts-and-estates attorney Paul Gordon Hoffman, planned charitable giving is every bit as personal as it is professional. A founding member of the nationally recognized Los Angeles law firm Hoffman, Sabban & Watenmaker, APC, Paul routinely advises clients on matters related to charitable planning and how it fits into the scheme of their larger estate plans.

Away from the office, the attorney practices what he counsels clients. For Paul and his wife, Sue, giving back plays a prominent role in their lives, and their donor-advised fund (DAF) at the Jewish Community Foundation of Los Angeles (The Foundation) provides the ideal charitable vehicle for doing so.

While the Hoffmans sustain a range of causes of shared importance to them through the DAF they established in 2012, the charitable fund also enables them to respond generously and nimbly in times of crisis, including support in the aftermath of catastrophes such as the Santa Barbara wildfires and Louisiana hurricanes. Most notably, though, it is their giving during the current global pandemic that has taken with a variety of assets and can recommend grants to your favorite charities, Jewish or secular, on your own schedule. You may select investment options to potentially grow your fund as The Foundation streamlines the entire process by handling all the administrative responsibilities, freeing you to focus on the joy of giving.

The benefits of a donor advised fund at The Foundation include:

• With an initial contribution of at least $5,000 in cash, you can start your own donor-advised fund, receive an immediate fair-market-value charitable tax deduction, and have your charitable dollars in one convenient account where you can maintain total privacy about your giving.

• By using appreciated assets such as marketable stocks and bonds, real estate, or interests in a limited liability company to fund your DAF, in addition to the fair-market-value tax deduction, you will avoid all capital gains tax on your gift. And, through thoughtful pre-planning, a DAF can even help maximize tax benefits in the event of the sale of a business.

“What is our donor advised fund (DAF) for if not to be used in a once-in-a-lifetime event like the current pandemic?”

For the Hoffmans, as well as hundreds of others, select Foundation DAFs as the best vehicle to conduct their philanthropy.

STREAMLINE YOUR GIVING

DAFs offer many of the advantages of a private foundation without the costs and administrative complexities of a private foundation. One of the smartest ways to enhance your philanthropy is by establishing a DAF—essentially a charitable-giving account—at The Foundation. It provides convenience and flexibility for your donations, allowing you to give more strategically. You can fund a DAF.

• You can recommend grants of $100 or more to a nearly limitless range of nonprofit organizations, Jewish or secular, locally, nationally, or in Israel via 24/7 online access to your fund. Plus, you can review your fund’s balance and giving history and add to your fund anytime with a credit card or online check.

• If your fund’s balance is $50,000 or more, you can access several types of investment options providing diversity and potential tax-free growth of your fund’s assets.

• Additionally, our Center for Designed Philanthropy offers complimentary philanthropic consultations and educational programs on giving more strategically. For example, we can help you determine which causes to support based upon your own passions and fields of interest.

• Finally, DAFs afford the ability to name your children as successor donor advisors, effectively creating the closest equivalent to a private family foundation without the cost and administrative hassles of establishing and maintaining one.

MULTIGENERATIONAL GIVING

Studies indicate that children whose parents actively discuss giving are significantly more likely to become charitable adults themselves than those with parents who do not. This same research shows that charitable families volunteer more and consider themselves happier and closer-knit. That’s why we suggest engaging your family early on to communicate your charitable values and decision-making process.

To encourage their children’s philanthropic values, many Foundation donors have opened DAFs for their children and grandchildren as well, enabling them to experience firsthand the fulfilling power of giving at an early age. Upcoming articles in this series include instilling the fulfillment power of giving at an early age.

With respect to estate planning, a DAF can be the recipient (upon death) of all or a portion of the donor advisor’s IRA or other retirement plan benefits. The family then controls 100% of those funds for charitable-giving purposes from the DAF. Comparatively, if the heirs take the retirement funds personally, they would be subject to tax in some degree irrespective of whether estate taxes are applicable.

FOR THE GOOD OF COMMUNITY

The only cost associated with a DAF at The Foundation is a modest annual fee which covers several important administrative and portfolio management functions. A portion of that fee is reinvested in The Foundation’s own grantmaking to numerous causes throughout our community—creating, in effect, philanthropic sustainability.

CORPORATE CITIZENSHIP & GIVING GUIDE

OneLegacy Foundation:
Championing The Power of Organ and Tissue Donation

There is nothing more powerful than the gift of life, and thanks to the generosity of people in Los Angeles and around the country, that gift has never been more prominent than it is today. For the first time ever, the number of people on a waiting list for a lifesaving organ or tissue has declined in recent years thanks to the tens of thousands who have said “yes” to becoming a donor.

Supporting this effort in a big way for the past nine years has been the OneLegacy Foundation’s energy and dollars, which have helped champion organ, eye and tissue donation and transplantation through education and scientific research aimed at improving outcomes for donors, their families and recipients. The Foundation also passionately collaborates with community engagement programs that help inspire people to take action in support of organ and tissue donation, as well as patient and family support, to address the very human needs of donor families and recipients. In the past three years alone, the OneLegacy Foundation has donated more than $5.5 million to further research and raise awareness of the power of organ and tissue donation and transplantation.

Perhaps the most visible reflection of the Foundation’s work can be seen in its role as lead sponsor of the annual Donate Life Rose Parade Float every New Year’s Day as well as the annual Donate Life Run/Walk held every spring. Because of COVID-19, this year’s run/walk went virtual for the first time and included a special broadcast on YouTube and Facebook Live that was seen by more than 30,000 people.

The Donate Life Rose Parade Float and the Donate Life Run/Walk are just two of the dozens of programs and organizations supported by the OneLegacy Foundation. Among the many community-based programs that have benefited from the OneLegacy Foundation over the past three years are:

- Ava’s Heart Foundation, which provides housing assistance for organ transplant patients who must travel to Southern California for lifesaving transplants.
- Donate Life Transplant Games of America, which is attended by recipients and donor families from across the country.
- Comfort Zone Camp, which provides grief counseling and support to children, many of whom are organ donors who have lost a parent.
- Strenthline, which produces social media videos that are designed to increase organ donation and registration.
- Donate Life Hollywood, which serves as a liaison between the organ donation community and the entertainment industry to dispel myths and encourage more authentic and empowering stories on this important topic.
- Dozens of other organizations to which the OneLegacy Foundation has provided financial support including the National Kidney Foundation, the American Association of Tissue Banks, the Make-A-Wish Foundation, LifeStream Blood Bank, the UCLA Core Kidney Program and the American Liver Foundation.

At the same time, the OneLegacy Foundation is committed to scientific research that has the potential to advance the field of transplantation by improving transplant outcomes and increasing the number of organs that can be successfully transplanted. The Foundation also supports the next generation of clinical researchers by providing one-year grants to support laboratory fellowship training of transplant doctors.

Among those whose transplantation scientific research work has been supported by the OneLegacy Foundation over recent years are:
- Cedars Sinai Medical Center, both for its work aimed at genetic research to identify kidneys that have been affected by acute kidney injury as well as its work in support of a program that will now enable the transplant of hearts from donors with Hepatitis C.
- UCLA Medical Center and its pioneering work in immune tolerance to reduce organ rejection and reduce the need for anti-rejection medication as well as its efforts to fulfill the HIV Organ Policy Equity Act (HOPE) Act, which allows for HIV-positive organs to be used in transplant for HIV-positive recipients.
- Transplant fellowships to enable fellows to focus on transplant research at Keck USC and Ronald Reagan UCLA Medical Center.
- Cornea research taking place at the University of Southern California.
- The Teraki Research Institute and its work to expand kidney paired donation in concert with the National Kidney Registry.

“Donation is a precious gift that enables lifesaving transplantation that benefits donor families who create a legacy of life; recipients who return to vital, active lives; and our entire community that is enriched by this generosity and gratitude,” said OneLegacy Foundation CEO Tom More. “The grants awarded by the OneLegacy Foundation acknowledge and thank those people and organizations who are working to share the power of donation with others.

Through our grants and our partners’ good works, we are making an impact that can be seen in our six straight years of increasing donation in Southern California and in the continued increase in the success rates of organ, cornea and tissue transplants.”

The OneLegacy Foundation grants are funded by the nonprofit OneLegacy, which is dedicated to saving lives through organ, eye and tissue donation in seven counties in Southern California: Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, Ventura, Santa Barbara and Kern. OneLegacy serves more than 200 hospitals, 11 transplant centers, a diverse population of nearly 20 million, donors and families across the region, and waiting recipients across the country. In 2019, OneLegacy enabled the transplant of 1,619 organs from 557 donors, an increase of 8% over 2018. In addition, the organization reported a 4% increase in tissue donors to 3,005, helping over 226,000 individuals, while sight-saving corneas transplanted increased a remarkable 25% from the prior year to 1,616.

For more information, visit onelagacy.org, like us on Facebook or follow us on Twitter. To find out more about the OneLegacy Foundation, including its grant process, go to onelagacyfoundation.org.

In the past three years alone, the OneLegacy Foundation has donated more than $5.5 million to further research and raise awareness of the power of organ and tissue donation and transplantation. These donations have included:

- Hospital and Community Education Program sponsorships: $573,997.
- Public education regarding Organ Donation: $2,098,423.
- Donation and Transplantation Clinical Research: $2,831,265.

OneLegacy
saving lives through organ, eye & tissue donation
For the first time ever, the number of people on a waiting list for a lifesaving organ or tissue has decreased by 10% during the past several years. These numbers are a testament to those who say “yes” to donation and is a wonderful demonstration of the generosity of all of those who help to make the gift of life possible.

Vigorously supporting this effort is the OneLegacy Foundation. Over the past three years alone, the OneLegacy Foundation has donated more than $5.5 million to further scientific research, support education and collaborate with community engagement programs that help inspire people to take action in support of organ and tissue donation.

While we rejoice in the progress being made, there is still a lot of work to be done. More than 109,000 Americans are still waiting to receive a lifesaving heart, liver, lung, kidney and/or pancreas; and tragically, 22 Americans die needlessly each day while waiting for a second chance at life.

The opportunity to donate and to receive a lifesaving transplant knows no sexual orientation and no national, ethnic or religious boundaries. Please join in this effort and help save a life by registering to be an organ donor at the DMV and at donatelifeCalifornia.org.
Wells Fargo Continues to Commit Itself to the City of Los Angeles

By MICHAEL ORMONDE

Wells Fargo believes we are only as strong as the communities we serve. When they succeed, so do we. Corporate social responsibility is in our DNA and remains a top priority, especially during these unprecedented times managing through the COVID-19 pandemic and environmental natural disasters. I am proud to be part of Wells Fargo and a team of employees committed to improving lives and strengthening our community.

As the largest corporate donor in Los Angeles, we are proud of our long-standing relationships that make a lasting and positive impact in our communities. In the midst of the global pandemic, the Wells Fargo Foundation re-focused its philanthropic support to assist county, city, and nonprofit organizations with their COVID-19 relief efforts. As a proud founding member of the County and City of Los Angeles’ LA COVID-19 Regional Recovery Fund, we continue to work with Local Initiatives Support Corporation Los Angeles (LISC LA) to provide loan and grant resources to micro-entrepreneurs, as well as relief and recovery tools for small businesses, nonprofits providing essential services, immigrant-owned enterprises and other vulnerable Angelenos. Recognizing the growing need, the Wells Fargo Foundation allocated $9 million to more than 170 nonprofits throughout Los Angeles County to address housing needs and homelessness, support small businesses and provide emergency response aid for the region’s most impacted communities.

The economic stress caused by the pandemic has been particularly damaging to small businesses. Understanding their needs, Wells Fargo supported entrepreneurs through the Small Business Administration’s (SBA) Paycheck Protection Program (PPP), and we donated approximately $480 million in gross PPP processing fees to support the wider small business community via a new Open for Business Fund. In addition, The Wells Fargo Foundation has donated more than $17 million to support small business as part of our $175 million commitment in aid in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. Wells Fargo’s Diverse Community Capital program, launched in 2015 to empower diverse small business owners, has helped approximately 150 community development financial institutions (CDFIs) finance $1.6 billion in lending and deliver 1.8 million hours of technical assistance – enabling diverse entrepreneurs to sustain more than 195,000 jobs in rural and urban markets nationwide.

September marked our first company-wide Month of Action campaign, which kicked off a new year-round approach to employee service and giving. Employees participated in the Month of Action by taking part in virtual volunteer opportunities with select charities, making financial gifts to their favorite cause or to the WE Care Fund to help colleagues in need, or by performing acts of kindness. The campaign helped our employees align our giving, volunteering and commitment to the charities we each individually choose to support.

As Thanksgiving approaches, I traditionally enjoy taking time out of my day with my partner the day before Thanksgiving to serve alongside the LA Mission during its annual Thanksgiving meal event. Wells Fargo has been a part of this annual tradition since 2010, and I’ve been fortunate to serve our homeless Angeleno community these past three years since becoming the region bank president for Los Angeles. Despite the challenges of COVID-19, together with SRO Housing, the LA Mission will continue to provide meals and hope to families in Los Angeles. Now more than ever, the LA Mission needs our support as the homelessness in Los Angeles continues to rise. According to the Los Angeles Mission’s State of Homelessness, more than 53,000 people in Los Angeles County are experiencing homelessness, and of that number, 9,322 people in the past year are experiencing homelessness for the first time. Additionally three out of four people experiencing homelessness remain unsheltered. I invite you to join Wells Fargo and me in support of organizations like the LA Mission and LA LGBT Center and many other organizations that are tackling this important issue, which is particularly critical during the pandemic.

LAST YEAR IN LOS ANGELES COUNTY:

- The Wells Fargo Foundation donated more than $20.8 million annually to local charities, individuals and families with 484 grants to support nonprofits, schools and community organizations supporting housing affordability, small business growth and financial health
- Wells Fargo employees in LA County volunteered nearly 16,000 hours locally
- We gave each eligible employee 16 hours of paid leave to volunteer
- Employees could qualify for and receive up to $2,000 in Community Care Grants by volunteering and supporting their nonprofit organizations of choice

ADDITIONAL WELLS FARGO COVID-19 RELIEF EFFORTS IN LOS ANGELES COUNTY:

- Financial Health: Support efforts ensure ongoing financial counseling and coaching to families and individuals, as well as grants to help those struggling due to loss of income.
- Wells Fargo also supported City of Los Angeles

Wells Fargo supported entrepreneurs through the SBA’s PPP, and we donated approximately $400 million in gross PPP processing fees to support the wider small business community via a new Open for Business Fund.

Mayor Eric Garcetti’s Angeleno Campaign, with $250,000 to provide direct relief funds to families in need.

It is an honor to lead the Los Angeles region, and I look forward to discovering what more we all can do together for our City and community. To our employees and community organizations, thank you for all you do. Together we will continue to improve lives and strengthen communities throughout Los Angeles.

Michael Ormonde is Wells Fargo Region Bank President, Los Angeles.
Small business owners are dealing with unprecedented challenges because of COVID-19. But they are also tougher than the challenges they face. We created the Small Business Resource Center to support small business owners as they adapt, rebuild, and grow their companies amidst uncertainty.

Action-oriented content to help you rebuild stronger

We want to help you navigate the COVID-19 crisis without losing sight of your long-term goals. So we built this program around five themes that are relevant to small business owners every day.

- Insights provides context for the crisis, including what it means for your customers and your business.
- Business strategy covers the best way to adapt, rebuild and grow as a company.
- Connections looks at how to build a community that can help you through the crisis.
- Marketing explores the best way to promote your company amidst uncertainty.
- Capital considerations looks at everything from cash flow to financing.

MISSION STATEMENT
To combat mass incarceration by disrupting the money bail system – one person at a time.

SERVICE AREA
The Bail Project provides free bail assistance to low-income people in Los Angeles and more than 20 other cities across the U.S.

FAST FACTS
What percentage of total revenue goes to cause (after operation expenses)?
100% of donations received through our website go directly toward paying bail for our clients.

WHAT WAS YOUR GREATEST COMMUNITY IMPACT IN 2020?
During the past year, as our nation has reckoned with the systemic forces that disadvantage Black and Brown communities in public health and criminal justice outcomes, ending cash bail has become—and must remain—a top priority. From conducting emergency bailouts in jails that were becoming COVID-19 hotspots to providing bail assistance for people arrested at demonstrations for racial justice, The Bail Project rose to the challenge. With a track record of over 14,000 bailouts in less than three years and experience in over 20 jurisdictions, The Bail Project will continue playing a leading role in this effort until systemic change is a reality and bailouts are no longer necessary.

AREAS OF FUNDING
The Bail Project is a national nonprofit on a mission to combat mass incarceration by transforming the pretrial system across the U.S. Our community-based teams work with local partners to pay bail for thousands of low-income people each year, reducing the human suffering caused by unaffordable cash bail, restoring the presumption of innocence, and building on the work of grassroots movements for decarceration.

In Los Angeles, we partner with the LA County Public Defender and UCLA Law’s Criminal Justice Program to provide free bail assistance to low-income residents. In addition to paying bail for our clients, we provide them with court date reminders, transportation assistance, and referrals to social service partners. We also collect data and stories to support advocacy and systemic reform. Through these efforts, we seek to transform pretrial justice for generations of Americans to come, bringing us one step closer to ending mass incarceration and racial and economic disparities in the U.S. criminal legal system.

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES
Every dollar invested in The Bail Project’s National Revolving Bail Fund can be recycled: once a case is closed and bail funds are returned, we can reuse those funds to post bail for another client, approximately two times per year.

The Bail Project’s work is made possible thanks to the generous support of thousands of individual donors across the U.S. and around the world. This holiday season, you can give the gift of freedom – visit bailproject.org/losangeles and become a donor today!

The Annual “Season for Sharing” event is held each year to highlight those friends who have made a significant contribution to fighting hunger in our community.

There are other opportunities for third-party events and co-ventures, such as the “Feed SoCal” campaign with Albertsons and ABC7, the “Help for the Hungry” campaign with Ralph’s/Food 4 Less and NBC4 or our peer to peer fundraising platform, Team #WeFeedLA.
